KANSAS STATE NEWS.

The Beloit Case. The State Board of Railroad Commissioners recently heard a re-argument in what is known as the Beloit case, Governor Brown, of St. Louis, representing the Missouri Pacific Raitroad and A. H. Some additional evidence was submitted by Governor Brown on behalf argument was to postpone the going into effect of the decision as to rates until the 6th of November. Miscellaneous. THE recent reunion of veterans at Leavenworth was a grand affair for the old soldiers, who met from all parts of the Missouri Valley, and around the camp-fires talked over the scenes and incidents connected with their former campaigns. It was estimated that twenty-five thousand strangers -veterans and their families and friendswere present, and the procession of veterans, many of the regiments being under command of their old officers, reminded those present of the days of "War's alarums." The heavy rain of the last day cast a damper upon the enjoyment, but al-THE killed and wounded by the late together the reunion was a grand success. and an occasion long to be remembered.

GOVERNOR GLICK recently addressed a letter to State Agent Crawford, at Washington, directing his attention to the fact that of the grant of 90,000 acres of public land made by Congress in 1862 to the Kansas Apricultural College, the State has selected and has had secured to it 82,313.53 acres, leaving yet due the State 7,686.47 acres. The Governor requests Mr. Crawford to ascertain the condition of these lands and see whether the remainder can not be secured for the State, or the Agrigrant. The delay, even if the deficiency is finally made up, must result in the selecthe good land being taken up so rapidly. If good lands could be selected soon the deficiency would be worth $40,000 to $50,000 for the Agricultural College.

In the United States District Court, at Leavenworth, Adolph Ott, a Kansas City liquor dealer, was tried upon the charge of carrying on the business without having paid the special tax to the Government. The defendant sent packages of liquor from his business house in Kansas City, by express to Chanute, the packages addressed to himself, and at the same time sent tickets to various persons there, authorizing them to receive the packages on the payment to the express agent of the amount due on each. FRENCH EXCESSES IN TONQUIN.

The Story of the Wholesale Slaughter of the Anamites by the French at the Taking of Hue-The Wounded Mercilessly Butchered while Pleading for Their Lives. LONDON, Oct. 19. Pierre Lote, an officer of the French expeditionary force in Tonquin, sends to the Paris Figaro the following description of the fall of Hue: The beaten Anamites were cooped up in the burning village. The only roads to escape from the flames lay under the guns of the fort, which was filled with sailors armed with Krapotchak 16peating rifles, with sights carefully adjusted to the distance. The magazines of the rifles were duly loaded. The men looked on, waiting until a flank movement of the other troops and the firing of the bamboo huts should drive the human quarry out before them. We saw them halting at the end of the village, with singed hair and garments; then, after a few moments' hesitation, tuckup their flowing robes as high as they could and trying to protect their heads with planks against the impending shower of bullets, they rushed on. A great butchery then commenced. Two volleys were fired. It was quite a treat (e'etait un plaisir) to see these fan-like streams of bullets sweeping down on the fugitives. They were poured in twice in one minute at the word of command in a sure, methodical manner. It was like a jet from a huge watering-pot, which mowed them down by dozens. In a cloud of dust and gravel we could see some who seemed to be driven mad, picking themselves up, limping now one way, now another like wounded animals. Gathering up their robes in a comical manner, their long hair, unfastened and streaming down their backs, made them look like women. Others tried to escape by swimming a lagoon, trying to reach the junks. These were killed in the water. Some good divers remained a long time under water. Our men continued to kill them all the same when they came up to breathe, like seals,
